MR. AND MRS. T. W. PRESTON RETURN FROM AUTO TRIP

They Covered 1075 Miles, Over Mountains and Through Valleys—Camped Out and Had One of the Greatest and Most Enjoyable Trips

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Preston of North Jackson street returned Friday night from a 15-day auto camping trip which was satisfactory except for the cold, disagreeable weather they encountered. They went north by the coast route to Santa Barbara and Monterey Bay and made their first camp of any duration in the Del Monte Forest at Pacific Grove which is on the bay. There they found the forty acres of ground devoted to the camp quite densely populated. The weather was foggy, and they did not see the sun during their stay. From there they went north and camped in the grounds provided at Colima, just on the outskirts of San Francisco in the country leading onto the peninsula. Having the leisure and inclination they devoted considerable time to sight seeing in and around the bay cities, giving one whole day to Golden Gate Park, going through the museum and picture galleries. They also motored to Palo Alto to see the building of the Stanford University and the wonderful stained glass windows in the chapel. Crossing on the ferry they went from Oakland to Berkeley and made a tour of the State University, then came down that side of the bay to Salinas where there is a fine camp ground well kept up with plenty of room and good shade. From this point they came south through Paso Robles and San Luis Obispo. At Santa Maria, which is about thirty miles south of the town last named, they found a very fine municipal camp ground equipped with electric lights and with gas ranges for cooking.

Their trip covered about 1075 miles and roads were good all the way except for a detour around Gaviota Pass. The valleys they traversed, the Salinas and Santa Clara are very beautiful with their fruit laden orchards and on the whole they enjoyed the outing very much in spite of weather drawbacks, though they were glad to see Glendale again.

Mr. Preston says camping is delightful for a while but home is pretty good after all. He met several confirmed auto tourists who did not subscribe to his sentiments, One of these travellers had been on the road camping continually twenty-one years. He carried a stock of brooms which he sold along the way and on which he made the cash necessary for his simple needs. When asked how he liked the life he declared there was nothing better. Another man who had been on the road nine years and who carried a cobbler's outfit, made his money by stopping at ranches and at construction camps to mend shoes.

SCOUT DIRECTOR VISITS LOCAL TROOP

Scout Troop No. 3 had a visit last night from Benjamin Robison Jr., scout director, who was very much pleased to discover the progress the boys have made under their new scout master, Frank Ayars. Members of the troop are as well pleased as is the director and gave him an enthusiastic account of the fine camping trip they made with Mr. Ayars last week to Topango Canyon. The director gave them a talk on scouting and told them stories. The boys expect to re-register for another year this week. They will meet next Friday evening at 6:30 instead of 7:30.

Director Robison told this troop and is passing the news to all the other troops that he will be at Brookside Park next Monday afternoon to give swimming tests to all scouts who want to take them. He also told them that there is now a good supply of scout pins which can be obtained from him or from Mr. Ayars.

POST AND CORPS HAVE FINE OUTING

The annual picnic of N. P. Banks Post and Corps, which took place yesterday at Echo park, as usual was a great success, with about 100 in attendance. The comrades and members of the crops had a wonderfully good time, with plenty of good things at the mid-day dinner which was followed by a program.

Comrade Sanford recited two original poems, and there were excellent speeches by Dr. Jessie A. Russell, Comrade Hull, Mrs. Houdyshel, Mrs. Pixley, Mrs. Morrison, Mrs. Alma Dutton, president of the corps, and others, the picnic breaking up about 5 p. m.

DR. HARRY ST. CLAIR HAS BIRTHDAY PARTY

Dr. H. St. Clair of 1250 South Maryland avenue, had a birthday Thursday and celebrated it by a trip to Walnut Park, where a little family dinner was given by his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Collon, at which covers were laid for the doctor and Mrs. St. Clair, their grandson, Robert St. Clair, the hostess and host and his father, "Grandpa" Collon.

When asked his age, most people adjudge the doctor to be about 60, but he says his youthful look is due to the good care he has given his body and his physical activity. In reality he is 70 and from this time on will be living on borrowed time.

DURFEES ENJOYED CAMPING TRIP

Dr. and Mrs. Durfee, of 114 East Los Feliz road, have just returned from a three weeks auto trip and camp at Mammoth, about 50 miles above Bishop, and are giving their friends who may want to follow their example the benefit of their experience.

They found the climate delightfully cool, with snow in sight on the mountain tops and near enough to get into if one desired to climb after it.

Mrs. Durfee reports lots of fish in the lakes but even better fishing in the streams, and she advises tourists not to load up heavily with supplies because delicious butter, milk and fresh meat can be obtained from the hotel at Mammoth, which keeps a large herd of dairy cows, and sells supplies at about the same prices prevailing in Glendale. There is also a good grocery where bread and other food can be had.

The scenery made a great appeal to Mrs. Durfee, and at one point, she says, five or six lakes are in view, including Lake George, which she pronounces the prettiest lake she ever looked upon and she has seen many.

They discovered that 'the best route is by way of Bouquet canyon, where the road is like a boulevard, and Willow Springs. Tourists who go by Lancaster to Moajve will have to make a detour and will find the road very bad. The Durfees made that mistake in the beginning and want to warn others against it.

PAGEANT AT SAN GABRIEL JULY 31

Citizens of this community are invited to attend the Pageant of San Gabriel to be given at the mission town on Sunday July 31. Interest is strife in this event all over Southern California as it is given to commerate the 150th anniversary of the founding of the mission and also the founding of Los Angeles.

Mrs. Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith, who has written and is staging the Pageant, has secured many children and grand children of pioneer Spanish families to enact leading part roles. The Pageant and the attendent festivities are free to the entire southland. San Gabriel, who 150 years ago echoed to the tom tom and the war whoop of the Indian, will, on next Sunday at three o'clock, thrill to La Paloma and the strains of Espanita. There will be dashing caballeros, flashing blades, lace mantilles, maidens and men in the fashion of more than a century ago.

ORATOR GRADUATES ARE ENTERTAINED AT DINNER

Intermediate school graduates who competed for oratorical honors in June, and from whose number selections were made to represent the graduating class at commencement, were guests of Miss Gladys Sharpe and Miss Ada Sallstrom at a delightful dinner party given at the home of the latter, 221 West Colorado boulevard, last night.

The table was daintly arranged with lighted candles, pink place cards, and favors representing bouquets but made of candy. The evening was spent in playing progressive games. Miss Sallstrom and Miss Sharpe, who were teachers of the group present, told the fortunes of their former pupils. Music and singing added to the pleasures of the evening.

Among the guests present were: Katherine Bender, Douglas Gregg, Jack Finch, Donald McMillan, Kenneth Miles, Arthur Timothy, Alex McDougal, Beryl Goodale, Lucile Beach, Margaret Majors, James Lyttell, Virginia Thom, Elsie Forsyth, Margaret Clark, Dorothy Godar, Billy Rathburn, Hershel Schaffer, Miss Gladys Sharpe, Miss Ada Sallstrom and Miss Margaret Sharpe.

MR. AND MRS. JESSE JOSEPH SELL THEIR FINE HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Joseph report that the tenant to whom they had rented their beautiful home at the corner of Orange street and Lexington drive, decided to buy it, and has purchased for $25,000 cash.

The Josephs are now foot loose and propose to carry out their plan to travel for a year, and will probably store their household effects. Mr. Joseph is still under the doctor's care but expects to be in condition to start for the east in the near future. As far as their itinerary has been laid out it will take them by boat to Seattle, where they will leave by the Canadian Pacific for eastern Canada. After six weeks' or two months' visiting on that side of the border, they will go south to New York city and put in more time as guests of Mrs. Joseph's relatives. When they return to California it will probably be by way of the southern route. They have no idea of giving up their residence in Glendale and when they return will build another home, probably similar to the one they have just sold. They have several possible locations in mind but will not decide upon a site until their return.

In the meantime, Mrs. Joseph will run up to San Francisco next week for a stay of a few days.

Mr. Hanna, the new owner of the Joseph property, came to Glendale from Monrovia He is an ex-lieutenant governor of Kansas and became so impressed with Glendale and the opportunities it offers that he has invested in considerable property here.

OBITUARY

MRS. BERTHA RANZONI

Mrs. Bertha Ranzoni, wife of P. I. Ranzoni, passed away Thursday, July 21, at the age of 31 years. She came here from Phoenix, Arizona, several months ago hoping to regain her health. She leaves besides her husband, her father Julius Olsen, who will accompany the remains to San Francisco where interment will take place, the Jewel City Undertaking Company making the necessary preliminary arrangements.

TRAFFIC OFFICER OVERLOOKS A BET

Heeds Plea of Law Violator and Thereby Lets Auto Thief Make Getaway

This is the tale of two San Francisco men who violated the traffic laws in Glendale and of a lost opportunity for one of our traffic cops.

A man named Abrams who sped across Los Feliz road and on south along San Fernando road at a dangerous speed, was arrested, put up a small bail and then failed to appear at court. Chief Lampert happened to be going north on his vacation shortly after this and was given a warrant for Abrams' arrest. This he served, and the offender sent $20 bail to insure his appearance. This was forfeited and Mr. Abrams will probably steer clear of Glendale.

The other case involved another San Franciscan named Neese, who was arrested for cutting a corner. He had no money and put up such an earnest plea for leniency, claiming his detention would interfere with important business, that the traffic officer let him go on his own recognizance, which he had a right to do. In the words of the old song, "He never came back," and it was learned soon after that he was a much-wanted man, having stolen the machine he was driving. Had he been detained and brought into court it would have been quite a feather in the cap of the arresting officer.

GOT WEIGHED, BUT LOST POCKETBOOK

Mrs. G. S. Howell of 227 Howard reported to the police that yesterday she stepped on the scales in front of Neale & Gregg's hardware store, and hung her hand satchel on the frame. She went away leaving it hanging and when she returned it was gone. The contents were checks of $5 and $6, payable to her husband, a $5 bill and some loose change.

Press Adds New Equipment

Hardly a week passes that the Daily Press does not add new equipment to its already up-to-date plant. Recent changes in the arrangement of the office enables our force in the composing room and job printing departments to handle our rapidly increasing business in a more satisfactory manner. As evidence of this the Daily Press was able a short time ago to turn out twenty-four pages in two shifts, which is considered a Herculean task for any small city newspaper. But the Press is growing in every department, and will continue to grow.

WM. WATERHOUSE IS GOING TO JAPAN NEXT WEEK

William Waterhouse, the veteran tabernacle builder for John Elward Brown, has taken a new job. He will sail next Monday with Paul Kanamori, the "Japanese Billy Sunday," as he is sometimes called, for Nippon land to promote an evangelistic campaign. Mr. Waterhouse, whose home is in Pasadena and of which city he was once mayor, is nearly 70 years of age, but is still hale and hearty.

He superintended the building of the Brown and Curry tabernacle in Glendale six years ago, and the one used for the April-May meetings held here by John Elward Brown. He also supervised the tearing down of this last structure and its rebuilding in southwest Los Angeles, for a John Brown series of meetings to be held next month.

Mr. Waterhouse will leave his family in Pasadena, as he expects to return in the spring.

Mr. Waterhouse's favorite expression to the newspapermen was: "Some day I'll go off on a long trip, and then old W. W.'ll no longer trouble you."

ROMANCE AT CITY HALL OF ALIEN REGISTRATION

George Brewster Could Fly in Fancy to Many Far Countries, But Sticks Faithfully to Job—Leisure Class From Other Lands Bask in California Sunshine

If George Brewster (who is now registering aliens at the city hall) were only a novelist with an expansive imagination, what fun he could have! At any moment romance is likely to be beckoning him and inviting him to seat himself on her magic carpet and be whirled off to some faraway country where one of the registrants first saw the light of day. But George is too busy to elope with fancy and sticks doggedly to the mechanical technique of his job. If he were to express his sentiments in rhyme, he would probably do it like this:

"Mine not to make reply,
Mine not to thusly fly;
Mine not to get too gay,
Mine but to fly away."

When he discussed his task with the writer the other day, he said records had been made of about 135 male residents of this district who are not citizens of the United States. He figures that this is about 25 per cent of the actual number of such residents, the other 75 per cent either being careless about conforming with the requirements of the law, or ignorant of their obligations.

In glancing over the list, it is evident that some of our most valued citizens are aliens. For example, there is Jack Mackenzie, of 1524 Lorraine street. who admits he is less than 30 years old, that he was born in Iverness, Scotland, a place that suggests the fiction that has delighted the world from the pens of James Barry, Robert Louis Stevenson, William Black, Ian MacLaren, and the other Scots who have made great names for themselves in literature. He has been in California seven years and is now a cameraman for the Vitagraph company, of Hollywood, serving as a sort of "Good Man Friday" to romance on the screen.

Then there is Francis Edgar England, of 120 West Burchett street, who was born in London more than a half-century ago, and who has lived in the United States, according to the record, for 37 years, yet so great is his regard for the land of John Bull that he has never applied for naturalization papers. He is a landscape gardener employed by the Pacific Electric railroad and laid out the grounds of La Ramada. He is regarded as one of our most valued townsmen in spite of the fact that he is an unconvertible alien.

Joseph Nitsche, who was born in Friewalden, province of Silesia, Austria, ought to be thankful that he is in America instead of his native land, which is now a bone of contention between Germany, France and Poland and the nucleus of a possible war. Of all the Central powers, Austria—the catspaw of Germany in the great war—appears to be in the most deplorable condition, and happy are the Austrians who have made homes for themselves elsewhere. Mr. Nitsche is a farmer and has been a resident of California for 17 years.

Another apparently from the same country is Joseph Schneider, who has been in California about a year and who is retired from business. He lives at 437 West Lomita.

Quite a proportion of these aliens have retired from active business and apparently sought California as the happy land of the leisure class. Of these are Charles Axel Wesson, who was born in Linkopina, Sweden, and who has been a resident of California for two years; and David Boyd Keers, a native of Antrim, Ireland (another good country to get away from just now). He has been a resident of California for a year and resides at 128 South Kenwood street.

Josiah Ratcliffe Vaughn, who chose the province of Victoria, Australia, to be born in, and has been in California a year, is another appreciator of our climate. In the same class is William Wallace Walker, born in Caledonia, Canada, who has been in California about ten months and lives at 245 South Kenwood.

GLENDALE'S FAIR COMMITTEE MEETS

No mistake was made when the Glendale committee to promote the exhibit from this city at the San Fernando fair was selected, for all its members are zealous workers for any cause in which they enlist and hot weather does not cause their enthusiasm to evaporate.

Friday they met at the home of Mrs. Ella Richardson on North Brand boulevard, around a luncheon table centered with dahlias of many hues and very smart in its other appointments. The hostess was assisted by Miss Esther Phillipi, a talented young woman who entertained with piano numbers after the luncheon.

Plans for interesting the men and women of Glendale in this comparatively local exposition were discussed, and late information received from officers of the fair association given out. Prizes are offered for the best individual exhibits, and committee members are anxious that Glendale should capture its portion.

Ladies present were: Dr. Caroline Payne Jackman, chairman of child welfare; Mrs. A. H Montgomery, chairman of culinary department; Mrs. J. I. Wernette, chairman of plants and flowers; Miss Eva Daniels, chairman of needlework; Miss Alice Frank, chairman of art, and Mrs. Richardson, general chairman.

B. P. Y. U. ENJOY A SKATING PARTY

More than 20 members of the Young People's union of the Baptist church motored to Alhambra last night where they enjoyed a skating party. An automobile committee provided machines in the evening for the group, accompanied by Rev. and Mrs. Ford.

The floor having been rented for the evening, was given over to the Glendale party. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served in the rink. The ride home was made by moonlight.

A GOOD SLOGAN FOR A GOOD TOWN

"Buy in Glenale if it is just as good or better and costs no more," is the slogan launched this morning by the chamber of commerce with a view to urging residents of Glendale that their patronage be given to local merchants in preference to those of Los Angeles and elsewhere, in order that local projects of civic development may be carried out.

With the coming of the merchants' exposition, to be held here from August 27 to September 3, there will be ample opportunity for Glendale people to become acquainted with the lines of merchandise handled by local stores. As a result of arrangements completed yesterday, the Pacific Coast Exposition company will conduct the exposition at the chautauqua grounds on Harvard and Orange streets.

H. Elmo La Breque, who is manager and director of the exposition has already succeeded in inducing a great number of merchants to conduct booths in the gigantic tent that will be erected. He has established his headquarters in the offices of the chamber of commerce.

One of the features of the exposition will be the stage and overhead promenade where exhibits of merchandise will be displayed. For the accommodation of stores which handle women's apparel the management will provide a group of young ladies as models. A novel scheme in lighting effect will be used to feature the various exhibits as they appear on the stage.

The promenade, which is an overhead walk running almost the entire length of the big tent, is raised seven feet above the ground. It is an adaptation of the chorus promenade which is featured at the Winter Garden and the Amsterdam roof in New York.

JUDGE LOWE BUSY WITH SPEED FIENDS

CHANGE IN HIGHWAY CONDITIONS AND CONSTRUCTION

A demand for improved state highway conditions and a change in highway construction policy has been voiced through a referendum vote submitted to 55,628 individual members of the Automobile Club of Southern California, the world's largest motoring organization.

Resolutions adopted by the board of directors of the club, declare for the completion at as early a date as possible of all highways promised by the state of California; for the building of such highways of material, foundation, quality, width and surface as will provide the people of Califorina with highways that will be superior to, or at least equal to, those constructed by other states in the Union; for the preservation of such highways and bridges by adequate traffic regulation, including the limitation of loads and the careful, tireless and efficient maintenance of all highways heretofore or hereafter constructed.

The resolution was submitted to 55,628 individual members. Of all those registering replies, figures compiled yesterday show that 99.77 per cent favor the resolution as adopted.

In adopting the resolution, the Automobile Club of Southern California calls attention to the fact that it has received many complaints concerning the state highway conditions and that, in conjunction with the California State Automobile association and county engineers, it caused an engineering investigation with a view to ascertaining the true conditions. A report of this investigation was transmitted to the governor of California, members of the legislature, and boards of supervisors.

The report prepared by the engineers of the club, assisted by the county highway engineers of most of the Southern California counties, shows that our state highways are inadequate to meet the needs of the traffic over them, because built upon insufficient foundations, without proper preparation of sub-grade or study of sub-soil and drainage conditions; because too narrow, too thin and made of too poor a mixture of concrete—being narrower, thinner and poorer in quality than similar highways now being built by other states, 30 per cent of said highways being already in need of reconstruction, and the average life of said highways being but 15 years, while the final maturities of the three state highway bond issues are 1961, 1962 and 1965, respectively.

"It is the desire of the club," said President W. L. Valentine, "to have all money spent in the future from bond issues devoted to constructing and maintaining the best possible highways. The investigation by the club's engineers was thorough. Points of failure were clearly pointed out and remedies suggested The conditions are of such a grave and critical nature that the officers of the club believed it to be their duty to take a stand on behalf of the motoring public for better roads, sounder construction policies and economy of administration. In this position the club membership, so far as it has registered, has concurred almost unanimously."

"Once a charming young woman presented a small check at my window," said the speaker at a recent bankers' convention. "She was transparently honest, but had no acquaintance in the bank nor any letters or other papers with her. I asked her if she had a hankerchief or some article of jewelry marked with her name or initials. After a moment's deep thought her face brightened and she asked: "Would an initialed garter buckle do?" "Did she get the money?" asked a voice in a tone of detached scientific inquiry from the back of the room. "I must remind you," said the speaker, judicially, "that a bank's relations with its clients often are highly confidential."

Getting Even

At one of the players' clubs they tell this story:

A certain youthful and sarcastic dramatic critic had been particularly severe upon the efforts of an actress whom more than once he had scored unmercifully. In course of time the two met and the actress, with an affectation of humility said:

"Really, Mr. Smith, I think it cruel of you to roast me like that, especially when it is considered that I have three children and a husband who is a dramatic critic to support."

HIGHWAYS OF STATE ARE BEGINNING TO BREAK DOWN

The costly Ridge Road of the State highway system and several other units of the State highways are beginning to break down according to a statement issued by the Automobile Club of Southern California. The Club has continued the engineering investigation into the condition of the State highways made last year in conjunction with the California State Automobile Association and county engineers.

Because of increased traffic loads, insufficient preparation of road foundation and too thin pavement, the Club says the State's roads have failed to such an extent that more than one-fourth of them ought to be reconstructed at once and that virtually all of them will be worn out while the people are still paying for them. While changing requirements and conditions that could not have been foreseen are responsible for many State highway failures the Automobile Club alleges that the practice of building roads by methods that have been shown to be inadequate is being continued.

The following specific points of State highway failures are given by the Automobile Club:

"On the portion of the State highway between Los Angeles and Ventura that section from Universal City to Springville through San Fernando valley and the Santa Clara River valley, a distance of 56.67 miles, has conspicuously failed. This road has cost on an average of $34,890 per mile exclusive of bond retirement payments and depreciation. A total of 23.06 miles have been reconstructed The Club's classification shows 27.78 miles poor, leaving 4.72 miles in need of immediate reconstruction and 12.79 miles classified as fair but which will soon need to be reconstructed.

"This road was one of the first to be constructed, being finished in 1915. It was to be expected that some failure would occur in such initial work. A considerable portion of the road was built over adobe soil and it has been disclosed by the investigations of engineers that the swelling and contraction of this kind of soil is unfavorable to the success of thin concrete pavement. The State, however, in the face of this experience continued until the end of 1920 to put four inch concrete pavement over the same class of subsoil and is now building five inch pavement without changing foundation specifications. Extensive failures have resulted in many portions of the State.

"The State Highway Commission experienced along this route. Near the westerly end 3000 feet of six-inch concrete, reinforced with wire mesh was laid. This 3000 feet of highway is in perfect condition today. While the figures supplied by the Commission do not give the exact unit cost of this experimental work, it is shown that the cost was very little in excess of the average cost of the other portions of the road.

"Failure of the road from the foot of Grapevine Canyon north toward Bakersfield is extensive. The slab has broken down into the sub-grade and the road is failing so rapidly that two maintenance crews are continually employed in making repairs. Traffic is forced to turn out and the motoring public subjected to inconvenience and expense. The road has broken down so badly that heaps of it are strewn along the right of way and reconstruction work continues. In some places reconstruction work has failed and the road has been repaired again."

RATIO OF PROGRESS LEAPS UP IN CANADA

(By International News Service)

OTTAWA, Ont., July 22.—Banks in Canada at the confederation of the provinces in 1867, numbered 123, according to comparative statistics released by the government showing the development of the Dominion, and had increased in 1920 to 4500.

Canada's railroad mileage was 2288 and has increased to 38,896 last year. Not a single grain elevator was in Canada in 1867, while there are 3797 today. In 1867 it was generally believed that wheat growing on the western prairies was impossible. For the past ten years the three prairie provinces have won the annual wheat championship of the North American continent. For five years they have held the international championship for oats.

Cattle numbered 2,624,290 in 1867 and 9,499,380 last year. Then they were range scrubs; now they are fine grades with many purebreds. The improvement of blood lines has been notable in all varieties of livestock. The scrawny sheep of the big herds have given place to the high-grade and purebred stocks of small farmers. The pony of the days of the open prairis has been supplanted by well-bred horses. Alberta, which was "out" of the world in 1867, won the championship for Clydesdale stallions at the International Livestock show in Chicago last year.

Prodigal Believes in Signs

(By International News Service)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 21.—Twenty years ago I. H. Kopf left St. Louis, pledging his father that he would not return until he could place an electric advertising sign over his own place of business.

Now he is coming back—a victor in the business world. He now operates a factory, making women's coats and dresses in New York City. He is coming back here to open a showroom for his line of goods. And an electric sign will hang over the street in front of his showroom.

Genuine Common Sense

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Many Ford owners can afford to own and operate any car they may choose, but they prefer a Ford "because it is a Ford."

For, "because it is a Ford" means dependability, ease of operation in traffic, ability to park in small spaces—and it means quick, sure transportation

And "because it is a Ford" means pride of ownership, good taste and genuine Common Sense.

A Ford gives all that any car can give—plus real utility, minus extravagance.

The demand for Ford Cars of all types is greater now than ever before; yet, due to tremendously increased production it is possible to secure reasonably prompt delivery—if you act at once.

Automobile Notes

Arthur Milligan is no longer connected with the firm of Chambers and Felts, having gone to Salt Lake City with his family.

Chambers and Felts have in his place Don Gothring, formerly with the Hollywood branch of the Calillac. W. B. Wilson is the new man in their shop and has had years of experience in that line.

Southern California car sales reports show Gardner car well at the top of the list, according to B. G. Sutherland, local dealer for the light four.

"Gardners sell at all times," said B. G. Sutherland. "They are a well built economical car, a car which gives the purchaser full value for his money invested. Take, for example, the finish of the car. There are few cars today selling at the price of the Gardner coming from the factory with a baked enamel job, yet such is the case with the Gardner. The extra fine upholstering, is another feature of superiority. Soft and lustrous, the handsome upholstering in the light four furnishes the owner not only with added attraction from the standpoint of appearance, but an extra degree of comfort as well.

Mr. Sutherland also pointed out the fact that Gardner success in sales is also due largely to the advertising the owners give the car. "Once a Gardner owner, always a Gardner booster," said Mr. Southerland.

The Duesenberg Automobile Company is now in production and its touring car, roadster and chassic were recently placed on view in Indianapolis.

Unquestionably the outstanding feature of the motor car industry during the closing days of May and the month of June, was price revision. From May twenty-first to the middle of June no fewer than twenty-six companies announced downward revision of their price scales. The companies and the amounts of the reductions are as follows:

Maxwell	$150
Hupmobile	200-325
Dort	100-180
Mitchell	160-260
Scripps-Booth	195-270
Willys-Knight	195-300
Willys-Overland	200-425
Hudson	150
Essex	150
Studebaker	150-200
Buick	270-660
Chalmers	150-300
LaFayette	750-950
Lincoln	300-600
Elgin	180-300
Franklin	150-250
Sheridan	200-300
Templar	500-600
American	200-345
Chevrolet	135-190
Cleveland	170-180
Dixie Flyer	150-285
Dodge	300-365
Ford	25- 50
Paige	20-150
Seneca	140

The price cutting is now practically over with and the industry is stabilized and set for the coming months. There is a general feeling that after the slow first half-year, the period from July on is going to show a considerable gain in business, in other words, the beginning of the long upward curve.

The Peerless organization draws the palm for being the first in the field with its 1922 model. The car which has so far appeared shows a newly designed California top, a lower mounting of the body and other minor changes. The appearance as a whole is distinctly an improvement in the models of the past.

Automobile men from all parts of California will gather at Lake Tahoe August 15th and 16th for the Northern Division meeting of the California Automobile Trade Association, that organization which is doing so much to eliminate the cut-throat garage men, and the unfair automobile dealer and repairman.

George Haberfelde, who was re-elected president at the general meeting in Santa Barbara, last June will preside, and will be assisted by Robert W. Martland, Secretary-Manager of the State Association.

The State Association is divided into more than forty local associations, each with a secretary-manager in charge. Representatives from practically every local in Northern California will be there, and much important busniess will be transacted.

Price reductions and general trend in the automobile industry will be discussed, and the reorganization methods of various business bodies threshed out.

That the "California Plan," of automobile trade associations, is a success, is proved by the adoption of the system in more than eighteen States.

Robert W. Martland, leaves this week for Seattle, Tacoma and Vancouver, B. C., where he will address the State associations there and tell them of the success of the California idea.

The California Association is now being put into effect in the northwest and Martland will tell them how it was done in the Golden State. This is the second time in less than a year that he has gone to lend a helping hand in organizing Oregon and Washington associations.

Mr. Felts, of Chambers and Felts local automobile dealers has returned from a hurried business trip to San Francisco. He reports all the roads in good condition except a few miles of detours.

Messers Miller and Murphy, local Sheridan dealers have installed the "Calol flushing system" in the Club Garage.

They have on hand all of the different grades of lubricating oil and with their expert knowledge of the use and care of cars it is safe to send the most discriminating motorist to them with the assurance that he will get the best of treatment at the fairest price.

The Monarch Supply Company has a complete line of Auto Lunch Sets of the latest and most popular designs.

One set in particular has novel features, in that it includes everything from the compartments to carry the food, the dishes, knives, forks, cups, saucers, bottles, to the we might say the "Home Brew compartment.

The compartments can be taken out the set made into an up-to-date suit case.

VELIE

Gives You More for your Car Money

A careful comparison of VELIE MOTOR CARS with others in their price class is the most convincing evidence that "VELIE GIVES YOU MORE FOR YOUR CAR MONEY."

The VELIE 34, in comparison with other cars in its price class, has less vibration and greater flexibility, longer springs, higher and wider seats, more leg room, a superior finish; wider, stronger fenders, a more solidly-braced body, and more of those conveniences and refinements usually associated with higher priced cars.

The VELIE 48, with its sturdy chassis and high-grade Velie-built body, sells for less money than any other car using the famous CONTINENTAL 7-R MOTOR and TIMKEN AXLES.

See the VELIE, ride in it, drive it, own it, and you will realize that VELIE does "GIVE YOU MORE FOR YOUR CAR MONEY."

SCENIC AUTO TRIP FOR THE WEEK-END

For a combination of beautiful scenery mountain road and a short drive, Turnbull Canyon Road is suggested. This trip though short is very beautiful and if one is used to their car not at all dangerous.

The best way to reach the canyon is east on Broadway, Glendale, through Eagle Rock City to Pasadena, to the right at Fair Oaks and Colorado street down through South Pasadena and Coyote Pass to Whittier boulevard.

Follow the boulevard until you reach the center of Whittier where a sign post directs you to the canyon. The other end of the road comes out on the Valley boulevard where the motorist can go east to Pomona or return through Alhambra and back to Glendale.

The round trip is about 60 miles.

SCRIPPS BOOTH MAKES LONG TRIP

J. H. Wederman of Langdon, South Dakota, recently pulled into the Club Garage after making a 3,560 mile trip from South Dakota, through the Yellowstone and down the coast. He told Mr. Miller of the Club Garage that in the whole trip, during which he encountered all kinds of roads from the flood areas near Sentinal Peak, Montana, where a cloudburst delayed trains for ten days and tied up motor traffic, to the good roads of California, he had no motor trouble.

Mr. Wederman is very enthusiastic over California's roads and Glendale in particular and says he intends to make it his future home. While locating a place he is visiting J. H. Trotter, 801 East Orange Grove.

A Daughter of Chief White Crow

By HAROLD SINCLAIRE.

(©, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

Each year the Hopi Indians dance the corn dance, in honor of the tasselling blades and in praise of the giver; and each year since he had joined the agency Clifford Durham attended the spectacle alone.

Men and women participated in the great sacred dance in honor of the corn.

This year there was a newcomer, a girl of exquisite beauty.

"I am the assistant agent," said Clifford introducing himself to her as she stood a litle apart from the throng of Indians after the dance. "You are of this tribe? But I have never seen you. Where do you live?"

"I? Oh, I am an Indian in exile," she answered, smiling. "No, you will not see me again. This is my first return and my last. My father was Chief White Crow."

"I," said Clifford, "shall remain here—always, I think. I was born among the Indians and have learned to love them. I ask no more of life than that I may remain here until I die, protecting them, instructing them, helping them and teaching them to help themselves."

"God aid you in your worthy purpose," she answered softly. Clifford saw that there were tears in her eyes. He clasped her in his arms and rained kisses upon her lips and throat.

She fought him like a fury, fought her way out of his arms, and stood glaring at him under the large, yellow harvest moon.

"You—how dare you!" she cried passionately. "You—who were sworn—who have just told me that you wanted to help—" She choked upon her words. "So you think because I wear the Indian garb that I am only an Indian girl," she went on in tones of intensest bitterness.

"Forgive me," he murmured humbly. "I love you. I have never seen any woman like you. I was insane. Give me a chance to prove that I was not slighting you."

"Oh, you shall have your chance," she answered and turned away.

Governor Lawson was partly of Indian blood. Though it was only one-eighth, or hardly more, he boasted of it. It gave him prestige among the aboriginal inhabitants of his state, many of whom had won honors in various ranks of life. Three were in the legislature. One owned a bank. Governor Lawson made the welfare of the Indians his study and hobby. He sent for Clifford, to examine him concerning a matter of disputed lands.

After the talk he said: "You have been seven years on the reservation, they tell me. You must take a long rest in the capital.

"Durham," said the governor, "I want you to stay and be our guest at my daughter's wedding tomorrow.

And, when Clifford assented, grudgingly, for he felt ill at ease, the governor led him into his drawing room. A young woman was seated there.

"Estelle," said Governor Lawson, "I want to introduce Mr. Durham."

The color flamed into Durham's face. It was his Indian girl. She smiled coldly at him.

"You asked for your chance," she said. "Well, I have given it to you."

"To love you?" he murmured, and she drew back as though he had whipped her.

"To prove that you were not slighting me," she answered.

Clifford Durham was a man of simple mold. He had never loved until that night; since then he had always loved. He knew he always would. Later that evening he turned his feet resolutely in the direction of the governor's residence, set in the grove of trees. Next moment he was striding noiselessly across the turf.

Estelle was seated at her window beside a lamp. Invisible though he was to her, she was perfectly apparent. When she raised her eyes he saw tears rolling down her cheeks. And then the memory became irresistible.

He walked up to the window and tapped lightly. "Estelle!" he called.

She sprang up with a startled gesture, turned and faced him. She seemed to freeze to stone.

"Estelle," he said, "I know why you came to the Hopi dance last year. It was because you are an Indian still, as I am in soul. It was the old, untamed love for the wilds, the plains, the solitude. You are like a caged bird here. And you are going to be married tomorrow!"

He laughed softly and held out his arms.

"You will never be happy in the life that you have planned out," he said. "You must follow your destiny—you must come with me."

"Oh—if I dared!" she said. "What would they think of me? What would they say?"

"Come, Estelle!" he whispered.

And suddenly he caught her in his arms and kissed her as on that night under the harvest moon.

"If your duty were here I would not urge you," he said.

"If you had not come I should have killed myself," she said. "Oh, my love—ever since that night under the harvest moon! It was I who sent for you. I knew you would come then and I knew you would come tonight. I am yours forever. Take me!"

She stepped outside the window into his arms. He pulled the latch and led her off under the windy skies, into the night, westward.

STRAIGHT THROUGH TO EDGE OF THINGS

An article by the Arther Brisbane editorial writer for the great Hearst papers inspired by a photo of the Velie 34 in the Grand Canyon with the above tit'e

The photograph mentioned is a Velie on the very edge of the world's deepest hole, in the Grand Canyon of the Colorado and a copy can be seen at Wishart & Sons, local Velie dealers.

Here is some achievement, when you stop to consider that no other means of transportation could make this trip.

The steamship is out of the question; a horse-drawn vehicle would never survive the tortuous rock-strewn roadway; and it would take years of toil and millions of dollars to place a railway engine on the spot where the Velie rests.

Over nineteen miles of twisting, treacherous trail, with wreck and death at every turn, this automobile picked its way, and brought up at the very edge of things.

Now we are going to ask you to give the picture a moment of your time, for in it are two of the world's greatest masterpieces.

One, the magnificent, awe-inspiring handiwork of God; the other—the automobile—the handiwork of man.

Give them a moment of your time, then hark back to Pueblo.

Here was a thriving, prosperous city, nestling peacefully and secure at the foot of the mighty Rockies.

Suddenly, like a bolt from the blue, the flood-gates of the heavens opened, and in the twinkling of an eye Pueblo was a ruined, helpless pile of mud-strewn wreckage.

Hundreds of its inhabitants laid dead beneath the murky waters, while its survivers gathering in the high lands, saw pestilence and famine staring them in the face. For, mind you, in less time than it takes to tell it, Pueblo was isolated, cut off from the rest of the world.

The wires were down, the railways gone, washed away along with the bridges. Of food there was none, and not a drop of driking water. Dear God, what a situation! Is it any wonder strong hearts quailed and bold souls faltered?

And then, when things were the darkest, when the seal of doom seemed about to settle down upon the stricken city, there was food to eat, water to drink and shelter for the homeless.

The bridges were down, the railways gone, and the roadways seas of mud. But the automobile had gone through—straight through, thank God—to the very edge of things.

Touring car and roadster, limousine and truck, a mighty caravan, they came with food and drink, with medicine and shelter, and hearts that were heavy with disaster and despair suddenly beat high with hope as the spectres of famine and pestilence passed on with the swirling waters.

Now, unless your soul is warped and your heart palsied, you will see the grandeur of God in the handiwork of man as well as in the mighty Canyon.

And you will know that that same handiwork is going to endure as long as the rugged cliff on which it rests, and you will be proud that it has been your lot to be a maker, or seller of this wonderful achievement—the automobile.

And being proud of this fact, you will put the worries of care and depression behind you, and standing out "four square you will see it through—straight through to the edge of things."

If He Agreed With Her

At a dinner one evening, when the soup came on they started an argument about the price of the sitting-room carpet, or it might have been the gravel for the front garden.

As the fish was served the argument was getting hotter: the joint saw it a little warmer still, until, when the dessert arrived, both husband and wife could scarcely eat for indignation.

Then the wife interrupted herself to say to her husband, in a plaintive voice:

"I don't know whatever would happen, Paul, if you ever agreed with me on any topic."

He look at his better half and sighed.

"I'd be wrong," he said—"I'd be wrong."

Orange Icing

Mix the grated rind of one orange with one teaspoonful of lemon juice, one tablespoon of orange juice, and one egg yolk. Beat in confectioner's sugar until the mixture is stiff enough to spread. It will take about one and one-half cupfuls of sugar.

AGED MAN IS STILL ACTIVE IN BUSINESS

NEW YORK, July 23.—Daniel M. Treadwell, lawyer, author, scientist, broker and man of affairs, on the eve of his ninety-fifth birthday is just a bit amusedly tolerant of the furor made annually over the fact that John D. Rockefeller, in the ripe maturity of his eighty-second year, still is able to play golf and enjoy a drive in his motorcar—or, perhaps, one of his motorcars might be better.

Mr. Treadwell goes to his office at the Home Title Insurance Company daily, and conducts his routine affairs as a matter of course, and he doesn't expect anyone to wax excited about it. He is regarded as the oldest active business man in New York City and he is looking forward to being a good deal older business man before he retires to spend his old age in peace and quiet.

Mr. Treadwell admits that John A. Stewart, of Morristown, N. J., chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Trust Company, who will celebrate his ninety-fifth birthday on August 26, is getting along in years and has earned his retirement, but feels that for himself ninety-five years will be a bit young for retirement. Mr. Stewart goes to his office in Wall street three times a week.

Never Wears Glasses

On the 26th of this month Mr. Treadwell will go to Freeport, L. I., for his annual birthday party with his little grandnephew, Charles P. Harvey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Harvey, who is his junior by a little matter of exactly eighty-four years to the day. Mr. Treadwell will be ninety-five and Charles eleven years old, but the slight discrepancy in years doesn't alter the fact that the two are "buddies," and neither would feel that his birthday had been celebrated properly minus the presence of the other.

As a matter of fact Mr. Treadwell has the appearance of a man in the late fifties. His eye is clear, he never wears glasses, his step is firm and he has a full crop of hushy white hair. His carriage is erect and soldierly and he has all the vigor and vitality of a man slightly more than half his years.

Mr. Treadwell has a spontaneous humor which is very readily tapped. In fact, he managed to find considerable amusement over his clumsiness, some two months ago, when he permitted a pair of new rubber heels to trip him up and hurl him headlong down two flights of stairs leading to the stoop of a neighbor's home. He was bruised a bit instead of being killed outright, as would have happened in the case of some old fellow of sixty or seventy years, but he refused to call a doctor and has little to remind him of the fall now.

Orange Filling

Add the butter mixture and cool before spreading.

EIFFEL TOWER

The builder of the Eiffel tower, in Paris, recently received a number of American engineers on one of the platforms of the tower, and Alexandre Gustave Eiffel took occasion to comment upon some of the uses to which the tower has been put and which had not been anticipated when built.

The tower, it is recalled, was built in 1889 as a part of the French exposition. It is 1000 feet high, constructed of iron lattice work, with elevators running to the top. It is still regarded as a marvelous engineering feat and as one of the wonders of the world. Built as a novelty, however, it has come into prominence as a very useful structure.

When M. Eiffel built the tower, wireless telegraphy was unheard of and meteorological observations were haphazard and generally inaccurate. During the past 30 years the Eiffel tower has become noted as a wireless station and meteorological tower. As an integral part of the wireless servcie extending around the world, the tower is all-important. The tower also enables the study of the decrease of temperature at different heights, observations of the variations of the wind, the quantity of rainfall at different heights and the density of the clouds. It is an outpost for the mastery of the air.

Looking backward over his years, it is not surprising that Alexandre Eiffel, who is now nearly 90 years old, regards the scientific achievements of his time with no little wonder.

THE ROOT OF EVIL

Secretary Hoover's announcement that he will attempt to stimulate home building by diverting savings to such investments rather than stocks and bonds will strike a responsive chord throughout the country. With a shortage of at least 1,500,000 homes in the United States, the housing problem remains as serious as it did at the close of the war.

It is Mr. Hoover's opinion that the use of the $22,000,000 now in building and loan associations would be the start of a nation-wide home building campaign. Added to this fund Mr. Hoover hopes to stimulate the use of postal savings for home building.

The secretary's efforts will be received warmly and it is possible that he can accomplish some good, but the general house shortage will never be fully solved in this way. It is a difficult matter to attract investors when dividends are small, and as long as the government is spending billions of dollars annually profits in building will be eaten up by taxes. That is the root of the house shortage evil. Capital will find its way into home building as soon as taxes are reduced.

The writer who says pocket flasks are now worth less is doubtless correct, but why the space between "worth" and "less"?

A country is not made great by the number of square miles it contains, but by the number of square people it contains.

The output of the mint in Europe may have little real value, but the output of the mint beds is still worth par.

After a man hits his pace and begins to succeed, he finds his hatred of the capitalistic system subsiding rapidly.

There is trouble in store for a nation when it begins to nurse the idea that it has a monopoly of the world's brains.

There is comfort in the fact that 50,000,000 country people in America speak of capital and labor as "they."

GRAVE AND GAY

His Request

A lawyer was known to be a bit grasping. He had just made out a will for an old lady client, who was passing away. The next day the old lady, very near the end, said to him: "About my will—I've added something to it. I've given—you—"

"Just one minute, my good friend," said the lawyer, wishing to have witnesses for the remark. So he hurriedly called the family in, and when all were assembled he said to his old client: "Now, say what you were going to say."

"I've—given—you—" and she stopped, her breathing becoming more and more labored.

"Yes, yes," urged the lawyer. Then she finished:

"—a great—deal—of trouble!"

Preparedness

A certain clergyman always felt it his duty to give each couple a little serious advice before he performed the marriage ceremony. He usually took them aside one at a time and talked very soberly to each regarding the great importance of the step they were about to take and the new responsibilities they were to assume. One day he talked in his most earnest manner for several minutes to a young woman who had come to be married. "And now," he said, in closing, "I hope you fully realize the extreme importance of the step you are taking, and that you are prepared for it."

"Prepared!" replied the bride innocently. "Well, if I ain't prepared, I don't know who is. I've got four common quilts and two nice ones and four brand new feather-beds, ten sheets and twelve pairs of pillowslips, four linen tablecloths, a dozen spoons and a new six-quart kettle, and lots of other things."

Would Qualify Him

Two powerful colored stevedores who had had some sort of falling out were engaged in unloading a vessel at a St. Louis dock. Uncomplimentary remarks and warnings occurred whenever the two passed each other with their trucks.

"You jest keep on pesticatin' around wid me," declared one of the men, "an' you is gwine be able to settle a mighty big question for de sciumtific folks."

"What question dat?" asked the other.

"Kin de dead speak?"

Deserved Death

"What's become of the old-fashioned dramatic critic who used to write about an 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' show and compliment the dogs?"

"I've located his successor in a little western town."

"Well?"

"In reviewing 'Hamlet,' as presented in the local theatre, he said the large number of fatalities at the end of the play reconciled the audience to the performance."

He tapped on the back door and asked for something to eat. The good housewife replied that she would feed him if he was willing to earn the meal by cleaning out the gutter. The tramp agreed, and when he had eaten his way through several sandwiches she came out with a reliable looking hoe.

"You needn't have gone to that trouble, madam," said the weary one, sizing up the farm implement. "I never use a hoe in cleaning out the gutter."

"Never use a hoe!" said the woman. "What do you use then—a shovel?"

"No, madam," replied the tramp, starting for the gate, "my method is to pray for rain."

Father Bernard Vaughan is London's most fashionable and also her most democratic clergyman. He tells a story about a boy. "This boy called on me one afternoon when I had warned my housekeeper that I was too tired to see any one. 'That's a nice message to send a boy of this here parish,' I overheard him answer. 'You tell him I want to see him spiritual.' So, of course, I put on my birreta and came down downstairs. When I got down the stairs the boy said: 'Father, that's a nice message to send a pore boy in the parish—to go away because you're tired. I want to see you private. I don't want to see you out in this 'all, where everybody can 'ear our business. Mayn't we talk somewhere quiet?'" So I said, 'Come into the dining room,' and took him there, prepared for fearful revelations and spiritual difficulties, naturally. And then he said, 'Father, you ain't got such a thing as a pair of trousers, 'ave yer?" So I said, 'Yes, old chap, I have; and I have got them on.'"

Cereals and Their Possibilities

Do you realize how delicious and attractive cereal can be? Most of us are quite willing to concede its wholesome, sustaining and economical qualities, but too few appreciate its possibilities at breakfast and beyond.

Th various dry, ready-cooked cereals are particularly good in the summer months, and some varieties come partially cooked. The secret of success in preparing uncooked cereals is simply this: long cooking.

For flake cereal, use twice as much water as cereal, and for the granular, four times as much. Put the salt in the water and use at least one teaspoonful for every quart of water. Have the water boiling rapidly. Shake the cereal in slowly, so that the bubbling does not stop and you will have a cereal free from lumps. Cook over a direct flame until it begins to thicken, and then put in a double boiler to complete the process.

Do not stir during the cooking, unless you wish to add fruit. If this is done, stir with a fork. The perfect cooked cereal should just hold its form in the serving-dish.

The package cereals are generally better for the average family. They are more easily stored and handled.

Breakfast is not the only meal in which cereal may play a large part. With the addition of a little flour it can be made into muffins, griddle-cakes or waffles. If you want a treat, try making cookies—of the hermit clan—with raw cereal.

Rolled Oats Cookies

½ cupful fat
½ cupful sugar
1 egg, beaten light
3 tablespoonfuls sweet milk
½ teaspoonful soda
½ cupful raisins
¼ cupful chopped nuts
1 cupful rolled oats
1 cupful flour
¼ teaspoonful cinnamon.

Cream the fat; add the sugar and then the egg and the milk; sift the soda and cinnamon with the flour, then mix with the fruit and the nuts; add the oats and then combine the mixture. Drop from a spoon on a baking-sheet and bake; or roll out on a broad and cut into cookies with a cutter, using more flour if necessary. Bake in a moderate oven.

Chocolate Rice Pudding

1 quart milk
1-3 cupful rice
1-3 cupful cocoa
½ teaspoonful salt
1-3 cupful sugar
½ cupful raisins.

Mix the cocoa and sugar and moisten with some of the milk. Stir into the rest of the milk and add the rice. Pour into a greased pudding dish. Bake two to three hours in a very slow oven, stirring three or four times during the first hour. Add the raisins the last time you stir the pudding. Serve hot or cold.

Quick Candy From Puffed Rice or Wheat

1 cupful sugar
1 cupful puffed rice or wheat.

Put the sugar in a flat pan and melt slowly until it is a golden brown. Stir constantly. When a white smoke rises from the top, lift from the fire and quickly add the cereal. Pour on a greased plate and allow to cool. Break into pieces.

King's Muffins

1 cupful flaked wheat or oats
1 cupful flour
4 teaspoonfuls baking powder
3 tablespoonfuls sugar
½ teaspoonful salt
1 cupful milk
1 egg
1 tablespoonful fat.

Scald milk; pour on oats or wheat and let stand one-half hour before mixing. Mix and sift dry ingredients and add to the grain and milk mixture; add egg, slightly beaten, and melt butter or fat. Beat well and bake in greased muffin pans half hour in moderate hot oven.

OF INTEREST TO MUSICIANS

E. Robert Schmitz, the eminent French pianist, will begin a transcontinental tour at the end of this month.

News comes from Berlin that the Bayreuth festivals, the last of which was held in 1914, will be resumed in 1923. The resumption is made possible by an endowment fund of 3,000,00 marks, created by friends of the Wagner family. The Festival theater in Bayreuth, in which the performances are given, was opened in 1876. The corner-stone was laid four years previously, although at the time less than a third of the estimated cost of the building was in hand. The first performance of "Der Ring des Nibelungen" was given there in August, 1876. The deficit, however, was so unexpectedly large that the theater remained closed until 1882, when the first performance of "Parsifal" was given and the "Ring" repeated. The repertoire remained the same the following year, and then, after an interval of four years, when the festival again took place, "Die Meistersinger" was added, and in 1891 "Tristan and Isolde." Since then the festivals were held at regular intervals until 1914.

It is whispered that there is a beautiful row on between the New York music club of women and the national federation, writes "Mephisto" in Musical America. It would not be fair to enumerate the exact cause of this trouble, for it is to be hoped before the New York club breaks away, matters can be arranged.

The federation has done good work, has a powerful influence and is much needed. There are so many important issues before the country connected with music and the fine arts that the utmost harmony should prevail among the great women's clubs, who are all working for a good cause, which they can only do as the federation.

One of the great needs of these women's clubs, which comprise from 125,000 to 150,000 members, is a representative organ, which shall be more than a private speculative enterprise printing a few hundred copies a month and a subsiding on charity rather than on its own merit.

Edwin H. Lemare, municipal organist of San Francisco, has been appointed to a similar position at Portland, Maine, succeeding Irving J. Morgan. Mr. Lemare will assume his duties in Portland at the expiration of Mr. Morgan's contract, on October 1.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready to use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

DARING RESCUE BY GLENDALE MEN IN YOSEMITE

That it was Capt. Thomas D. Watson, commanding officer of the Glendale company of the National Guard, who distinguished himself a hero by personally going to the rescue of Lieut. Fred W. Nichols, who was marooned July 18 on Granite Cliff ledge, 100 feet above the floor of the main valley in Yosemite National Park, was information received this morning, by the Press, in a letter from the National Guard encampment in Yosemite National Park, which states that Lieut. Normal C. Hayhurst and Sergt. Paul E. Webb, of "Glendale's Own," Private Potter, Co. E, 160th Inf., and a park guide under the command of Captain Watson effected the rescue at peril of their lives.

Modesty on the part of Glendale's soldier heroes accounts for the fact that news of their part in the rescue did not reach here sooner. According to the communication received Captain Watson and Private Potter were let down a distance of almost 1000 feet over Sentinel Rock cliff in order to reach the ledge on which Lieutenant Nichols was isolated. This dangerous feat was effected at night and it was not until 2 o'clock in the morning that a rope was tied to Nichols so that he might be pulled back to safety. Captain Watson, Lieutenant Hayhurst and Sergeant Webb have covered themselves with glory in the eyes of their company.

Out on Patrols

Patrol reconnaissance furnished the chief element of training the guards were put through during the early part of the week. Instruction was carried out under Sergeant Shields, who assigned every non-commissioned officer some mission to be performed by patrol reconnoitering. Reports made to the battalion commander, when the mission was completed, showed that Sergeant Alexander and Corporal Weetman had best conducted their problem of reconnaissance.

A part of each day is devoted to lecture work by officers who are competent to speak on some specialized phase of military training. The company has already been instructed through this means in guard duty, sanitation, and public guard service to be rendered in the event of riot or some other unlawful uprising. Though there is to be no range practice at the encampment, much hard work has been spent in rifle instruction to teach the men the proper manner of sighting and aiming. A part of each day is devoted to musketry.

Snappy Brand of Drill

In preparation for the final days of camp, when there will be a big State Guard review, the 160th infantry regiment, of which Glendale's Company is a part, has been hard at close order drill and parade formations. Company M is reported to be putting up a snappy brand of drill of a character that will show the home town, when they return, that the two weeks spent at camp has not been futile.

Another honor came to the local guards in the shape of two appointlected as chief musician of the regilected as chief muscian of the regiment to head 25 buglers. Neal Sprinkle, of Eagle Rock, has been selected as camp song leader. His chief protest is the everybody stops singing to hear his voice when the guards get around the camp fire at night.

"Aces" Hard at Work

The Glendale company is exceedingly fortunate in having acquired such crack soldiers as Sergeants Webb, Oliver, Douglas and Alexander who are on the job from reveille to taps and are putting the sort of punch in the outfit that is causing it to forge away head of any other company at the encampment.

Mess call is reported to be more popular than was formerly the case and "chow" has taken a turn for the better with the recent appointment of Cook Young as an assistant to Cook Truitt. The pair are said to team up like a brace of French chefs at the Ambassador.

THE RIGHT THING AT THE RIGHT TIME

By MARY MARSHALL DUFFEE

THE GIVEAWAY

A man by nothing is so well betrayed as by his manners—Spenser.

THERE are many persons who feel that a man's table manners are an index to his general good breeding. If he handles his knife and fork in the way that is accepted as "correct" they will put him down as well bred until they have very conclusive evidence that he is not; but if he shows ignorance of or indifference to this accepted method then it will take much to make them believe that he has any claim to good breeding. This may be unfair, but it is true. Here are some of the things that convention requires us to remember in our manners at the table:

The salad is cut with the side of the fork and then eaten from the side of the fork.

Fish, soft entrees and, in fact, anything that does not absolutely demand the use of a knife, are separated into small pieces by the use of the fork, which is most excellent, as the knife at its best is a most ungainly utensil.

That you should never mash your food with your fork and never sit with your fork or knife upraised, like a telegraph pole.

That when not in use, either knife or fork must be laid on the plate at one side.

Never tilt your fork and knife on the sides of your plate, that is, with the handle on the tablecloth on either side and the tips on the edge of the plate.

That every time a course is removed you should lay the knife, fork or spoon used in eating it on the side of the plate.

Do not cross knife and fork on the plate, but lay them side by side.

In eating soup, custard, fruit, or any dish which demands a spoon, be sure you sip the food noiselessly from the side of the spoon, never from the tip.

Never dip your individual fork or spoon into a dish that is passed to you, but always employ the fork or spoon which will be found on the tray beside the dish, or on the dish itself.

All sorts of small relishes, like radishes, olives, salted nuts and bon-bons, are eaten from the fingers, but this must be done very daintily.

A MENTAL FRAGMENT

Wife: I'm going to give you a piece of my mind!
Hubby: That proves it.
Wife (fiercely): Proves what?
Hubby: You're crack-brained, as I thought.

Celebration of Spring.

Investigation of scholars has disclosed grounds for the belief that the event celebrated by Purim is none other than the coming of spring. The character of the festival is unmistakable, in the belief of searchers. Its occurrence in the middle of the last month of the winter points to its being the beginning of the celebration of the conquest of the winter by the youthful sun-god of the spring—as Marduk (Mordecai) is regarded in various Babylonian myths. Even rabbinical exegesis connected Esther with the planet Venus and the Babylonian goddess Ishtar, particularly since it has been shown that the queen of Persia at the date given for the plot of Haman was not Esther at all, but Amestris, the daughter of a Persian general.

Maud—And so safe. There is no danger of such a declaration being produced in court.

WOMAN SPENDS FIVE MILLIONS IN PARIS IN FORTNIGHT

(Written by MARGERY REX for the International News Service.)

NEW YORK, July 23.—"Is it the spender or the miser who makes the world go round?"

Thus demands Mrs. Smith Wilkinson of a bewildered world.

Truly the English spendthrift has made heads, at least, go around in that dear Paris, where she spent five million in two weeks.

The lady is surely careless with coin. Not content with the hats to be bought along the Rue dt la Paix, "Madame Monte Carlo," as the stunned citizens of Paris dub her, found a bargain in useless crowns, this especial one being that of the ill-fated Czarina, the price $3,300.000.

Among other trinkets she "picked up" in France were the Shewsbury pearls, price half million. Then gowns, loose diamonds to sew on dresses, reupholstering of autos and of private suites ran into millions.

And this strange woman defends herself with the plea that she cannot spend her income, which reaches thirty millions.

Some Other Noted Spenders

Though apparently champion of the spending ring, Mrs. Smith-Wilkinson is not the first person to enjoy wasting money. There have been those who blazed the trail for her and who established precedents and high marks for wasting long before the gay Britisher came to dazzle the Continent.

There was our own Coal Oil Johnny, who at the age of twenty-one left the oil fields of Pennsylvania to visit New York and show the old residents what a large evening looked like.

John W. Steele—his real name—had a nice little way of getting what he wanted. He selected not only $8,000 worth of clothes of a fine morning, not only bought cabs to help out indigent cabbies, but was perfectly willing to purchase such things as revenge for instance.

Staying at a hotel during his sensational New York visit, he found that a certain clerk was too indifferent to his importance. Johnny bought the hotel, fired the clerk and opened the doors to the public, to let who would enter, eat, drink or dwell therein. This cost a million dollars that one day.

Alas, in four years Coal Oil Johnny became bankrupt. He had to go back to the labor which had formerly netted him but $2 a day. When he died, at seventy-seven, he had been earning $50 a month.

But doesn't Mrs. Smith-Wilkinson make our Pennsylvania lad look a tightwad?

And yet there are other women whom we thought wild wasters until we heard of the golden blaze that has come out of England.

Mrs. Anthony Caused Stir.

There was Mrs. Charles Anthony, of Muncie, Ind., who went in for gold watches on evening slippers, diamond heels, armlets gleaming with gems. When visiting here a few years ago she wore a contraption that looked like diamond handcuffs. It dazzled Peacock Alley dizzy.

And she was considered a wild spendthrift!

Not long before that time the murder by his wife of Jacques Lebaudy, self-styled "Emperor of the Sahara," brought out the story of his excesses and extravagances, which often took an amusing turn.

Lebaudy was believed to be insane. He was at times placed in sanitariums. Perhaps this explains the odd and spectacular nature of his expenditures and escapades. Son of Jules Lebaudy, late sugar king of France, the "Emperor," in 1903, went to London. There he had fitted up for his use a magnificent suite in the Savoy. He called himself by the royal title mentioned. He made appeals to different courts for recognition since he owned an empire in Abyssinia. In this enterprise he spent many millions. Tradespeople called on him, anxious for the honor of being accepted "by appointment to His Majesty the Emperor of the Sahara."

His exploits in America, once this affair was ended, were sufficiently startling to cause comment. He used to buy broken-down race horses at large prices and give parades to show them off.

Mounted upon these decrepit steeds were placed uniformed messenger boys for whose services he had arranged. He claimed he was organizing an army to help the Allies. He spent a great deal in buying broken-down animals, furniture and taxicabs, all of which were put to similar strange uses.

Lebaudy Couldn't Spend All.

The vast Lebaudy fortune was not appreciably lessened by the "Emperor's" adventures, since the principal is great. In that respect his spendings were seemingly as powerless to ruin himself and family as those of the British lady.

Most memorable in the history of recent American spendthrifts was Charles G. Gates, who once tipped a waiter $1,000. It is only fair to say that the man nearly dropped dead and later revived, told the proprietor who returned to Gates $900, the dinner having cost the other hundred. Although willing to throw away money, Gates, it was said, could not be beaten out of a nickel.

On a visit to Cody, Wyo., Gates met a minister clad in a shabby coat. He not only got the clergyman a new overcoat, but cancelled the church debt. At the same time and place a cow puncher covered with his foot a note Gates had dropped, thinking the rich man would not notice it. But Gates' sharp eyes turned to look contempt at the man who tried to cheat him. He never spoke to him again.

As for Mrs. Smith-Wilkinson, if any one wants to beat "Mrs. Monte Carlo's" prodigality she will have to get hold of tht Hope diamond and plant it in her largest tooth.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally if You Eat Meat Regularly

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they slugishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

SKATES HELP SOLVE PROBLEM OF FLOOD

(By International News Service)

PUEBLO, Colo., July 23.—One of the chief concerns of many persons in and around Pueblo following the recent flood was transportation. Not so, however, with one ingenious young lady, with whom this tale has to do.

Before the flood waters receded the only means of reaching Pueblo from outside was by aeroplane, and the latter were unable to make a landing within the city limits.

After the water and huge masses of mud and debris had been removed from the streets the principal mode of travel about the city was that used by Adam and Eve previous to the original flood.

Nearly all the automobiles on the streets were engaged in some branch of the reclamation work, and it was several weeks before the street railway company succeeded in getting their cars in operation.

This condition in an industrial city like Pueblo where so many working people live on one side of town and work on the other, caused a great deal of speculation as to "How will I get there?"

The young lady referred to was much perplexed for a time over the difficulty of reaching her place of employment on time. Being an enthusiastic devotee of roller skating, however, she conceived the idea of accomplishing her daily traveling via the roller-skate, strapped them to her dainty extremities, and, pronto, the problem was solved.

She rolled merrily along to and from her work, dodging, with a smile, in and out among the hurrying crowds, changing the time-honored phrase, "Business before pleasure," to "Business with pleasure."

While it is not anticipated that the sidewalk roller skating fad will reach such proportions in Pueblo as to seriously curtail the business of the street car company, it is believed that many who have been visiting amusement parks and paying for the privilege of skating will emulate this khaki-clad miss and secure a little healthful recreation in going to and coming from their daily tasks.

THEATRES

Palace Grand

One of the most famous racing cars that ever sped around the course and which won perhaps more speed victories than any other car in existence during the short time that it was in the field, is driven by Wallace Reid in the breath-taking scenes of "Too Much Speed," his latest Paramount Picture, which made such a hit yesterday at the Palace Grand and which will be shown again today.

The car won the first prize at the opening of the new speed course at Beverly Hills, near Hollywood, California, on Februray 22nd 1920. In this race, the car made two hundred and fifty miles without a stop, averaging a speed of a hundred and three and four-fifths miles per hour.

With Wallace Reid at the wheel, however, the car shows that it can still do over a hundred per without straining itself in the slightest, and were it not for the speedway rulings would probably still be winning victories.

Al. St. John had the audience at the Palace Grand roaring yesterday over his antics in the comedy "The Window Trimmer." The picture will be repeated again today on the bill with "Too Much Speed."

Glendale Theatre

Tonight is the big night at the Glendale theater, when the Meiklejohn and Dunn road show will be the chief attraction, with the feature picture, "The Husband Hunter," starring Eileen Percy, as another big feature.

On the vaudeville tonight will be found Manhattan's musical clowns, who play 20 different instruments; Gordon and Rica, sensational European singers, dancers and cyclists; King and King, novelty dancers, and "Rookie" Lewis, blackface comedian.

The usual popular prices will prevail tonight, with two shows, one at 7 and the last at 9 o'clock.

"Aren't the dresses commonly seen on the street rather startling?"

"They never startle me," replied the severe citizen. "I am never so impolite as to look."

A Big Flag FREE

HONOR THE FLAG

The Glendale Daily Press struck a responsive chord in its offer of a beautiful bunting flag with each yearly subscription paid in advance. All we could procure at that time were speedily taken and many applied for the flags after the supply had been exhausted. To satisfy these demands we have ordered a new supply, and these will be given on the same terms as were the first. The Daily Press is not doing this as a money-making proposition, for the flags are quite costly and the paper is worth every cent asked for it, but we desire to do our bit toward stimulating patriotism and reverence for the flag. We hope to eventually see "Old Glory" displayed in every Glendale home, and we want to do our part toward bringing this about.

Fill out the coupon below and bring it or mail it to the office, accompanied with $5 for a year's advance subscription, and a flag will be laid away for you. If in arrears, pay to date and a year in advance to get the flag.

AN OPTIMIST NOW IN OUR MIDST

By W. R. STOKLEY
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

DETROIT, July 23.—World going to the dogs? Think so?

That the old world and all those on it are headed for the general bow-wows seems to be the idea of about everyone these days.

The Catholic Daughters of America, in national convention here, said that divorce, birth control, agitation and modern dress, etc., indicate decadency.

The Christian Endeavor convention in New York came out with the same idea.

The Hon. Ernest T. Tustin, president of the Northern Baptist convention held recently in Des Moines, Ia., declared that "in our social life there has been a most deploring lowering of morale," and that "in our local politics the morale is lower perhaps than ever before."

And now comes a voice declaring that the alarmists are all wrong.

"Bunkum!" cries the Rev. W. L. Stidger, pastor of St. Mark's M. E. church.

"The world is not growing worse—it is better than ever before and is becoming better every day," the minister declares.

"The world, or our part of the world, is not in its decadency, nor are there signs of approaching it.

"The Old World isn't all right—it never has been—but it is improving all the time.

"You hear about empty churches. Many of them are empty, that's a fact. But these ministers who are preaching a present-day Gospel in a present-day way aren't talking to empty pews. There are more persons attending church than in many years.

"After all, the kind of modern Gospel I mean isn't a new Gospel at all—it's the real, original Gospel—the kind that makes men better, because it makes their hearts better; the kind that reaches down to the industrial life and insists on the principles of Christ being applied to the work-a-day life.

"Immodest dress? To be criticized, surely. However, because a girl wears a short plaid skirt is no indication that she has fallen or is going to fall. Girls today are just as good as they ever were and much more self-reliant.

"Drinking? Of course there is drinking. But there was more of it before prohibition came. When it was usual for men to be drunk there was less talk about it. The unusual causes gossip."

On returning home from school one day, Jackie at once proceeded to the rabbit hutch. From inside the house his mother could hear him questioning the rabbits thus: "Twice two?" No answer. Again: "Twice two?" No answer.

"Why on earth are you talking to the rabbits in that fashion, Jackie," she asked.

"Well, mother, teacher told us this morning that rabbits multiply very quickly but I thought all along that she was wrong."

A negro was brought before a justice of the paace. He was suspected of stealing. There were no witnesses, but appearances were against him. The following dialogue took place:

"You've stolen no chickens?"

"No, sah."

"Any turkeys?"

"No, sah."

The man was discharged. As he stepped out of the dock he stopped before the justice and said with a broad grin: "Fo' de Lawd, squire, if you'd said ducks you'd a' had me."

JAPAN MINISTERS PAY NO INCOME TAX

(By International News Service)

TOKIO, July 23.—Enforcement of the new income tax laws in Japan brings to light certain exemptions which must be of particular interest to American official struggling along on comparatively small salaries. While numerous prominent men of Japan are forced to pay this month far more than they have ever before in the way of income taxes, there are certain Cabinet Ministers who cannot be touched by the new law.

Cabinet Ministers in Japan get what is known as "social expenses," and from these expenses they are allowed to entertain fairly lavishly important visitors, prominent statesmen and others who come to Japan. Count Uchida, Foreign Minister, whose position in Japan corresponds to that held by Secretary of State Hughes in the United States, is allowed Y3,000,000 ($150,000,000) annually for "social expenses." Numerous guesses by the newspapers of Tokio as to just how the Count uses this sum of money are made, but doubtless an itemized statement of the Count's "expenses" will not be known. Viscount Takahashi, Finance Minister, must worry along on only Y125,000, while the Premier is cut off with the sum of Y100,000 ($50,000).

Mrs. Gilbert K. Chesterton, the wife of the English humorist, was talking about the rather ultra bathing-suits worn by the Florida girls. "I like these swimming suits," she said, "when they are worn by girls who are beautifully built. Too often, though—" Mrs. Chesterton shrugged her shoulders. "Too often you are reminded down there of the girl who said to her pastor: 'I am afraid I must confess to one sin—the sin of vanity. Whenever I pass a mirror in my swimming suit I can't help thinking how beautiful I am.' 'Oh,' said the pastor, with a wave of his hand. 'That isn't a sin—it's only a mistake.'"

An old darky visited a doctor and received instructions as to what he should do. Shaking his head, he was about to leave the office, when the doctor called out: "Hey, there, uncle, you forgot to pay me." "Pay you for what, boss?" For my advice." No, sur, boss," said Rastus, shuffling out. "I'se compluntated it from all angles and decided not to take it."

THE PINCH

By LOUISE HOFFMAN.

(©, 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

And so they were married and lived happily ever after—that is, until the question of the best way to handle the family income arose. But then there was no question just at first. Bob assumed that as head of his family he was only exercising his prerogative by keeping the purse strings and doling out so much every once in a while and Joyce tacitly agreed.

"Bob, dear," she timidly began at dinner, "Etta wanted me to go shopping this morning."

"You went, of course?" he asked in the indulgent tone of one being sure of an affirmative reply.

"No," returned Joyce briefly.

Bob's face was a study. "I thought you adored shopping," he ventured. "Why didn't you go, honey girl?"

Joyce suddenly lost her timidity. "I didn't have any money," she blurted out.

"No money? Where did it all go to?" he inquired, mechanically, wiping his dry lips and gulping down some water.

"I don't know," confessed Joyce, all at sea. "I owe the butcher, the grocer, the milkman, and the little you gave me seems to have evaporated."

Joyce and Bob spent their first disagreeable hour together facing facts. But at the end of it Joyce was able to show Bob that to continue this practice of doling out uncertain amounts of money every once in a while was nothing short of daily crucifixion. Bob saw the justice of her claims and the niggardly position in which she was placed and together they resolved on a weekly allowance.

Joyce felt a sense of security in knowing definitely how much money she could spend weekly.

This plan worked admirably for a few years, but Joyce found it had inconvenient drawbacks, too. A single week's allowance failed many times to meet expenditures that were in view a month ahead. It became an actual bug-bear to account for every penny. She struggled many an hour over accounts that refused to balance. She could not always remember.

One day Joyce went to call on Etta her bridesmaid, who was now a happy wife, and found her busy writing out checks.

"Why, Etta!" she exclaimed in rapt admiration. "I didn't know your ship had come in and that you had money enough of your own to bank. You're a lucky girl."

"I haven't any money of my own exactly," laughingly protested Etta.

"But you sign these checks personally," coming nearer and taking the liberty to stare at the white bits of paper.

"Oh, that's because we have a joint account at the bank," explained Etta. "We handle our income by the bank account. It is placed in both Jim's name and mine. This gives me the right to write and sign checks equally with Jim."

"I should think that would cause confusion," commented Joyce with puckered brow.

"No," returned Etta, "because we are equal partners. We share in common. Jim earns the money and deposits his weekly salary in the bank. He says I have earned it equally with him in caring for him, his health and our home. So the money belongs to both and both of us have a say as to its spending and its saving. It simplifies housekeeping and bookkeeping as I have all my purchases listed on a bill and rendered once a month payable by check."

Etta smiled. "'Every virtue lies dangerously near a corresponding vice,'" she quoted, "and I had to bring myself up sharply once in a while in order not to abuse the credit system. But I learned."

Joyce went home with her mind full to overflowing with a new, practical and workable manner of handling their income.

"Pshaw! my salary isn't large enough!" protested Bob when Joyce told him her new scheme that night at dinner. "I can't get enough together at any one time to warrant a bank taking my account."

Joyce was not to be put down. "Well, let us visit our local banks," she suggested, "frankly state our circumstances and see what happens."

And they did finally, with the result that Bob's eyes were opened to the fact that the time has gone by when the average bank refuses an account because of the limitation of the daily balance. That when a married couple open a joint bank account it establishes domestic credit.

Bob and Joyce went home as though treading on air. The bank officials were so courteous and ready to explain every detail of the checking as well as the savings system. Bob felt a new self-respect for his ability in the financial world. And Joyce began to anticipate the dignity and importance of signing checks herself.

"There goes Nell," whispered Joyce as they saw a modestly attired woman disappear into Lawyer Cook's office. "Oh, Bob, I know their money difficulties had brought them to the point of a divorce and I wonder," she shuddered and pressed his arm, "if ours might have led us there, too. I believe I'll tell Nell what the pinch taught us and how, through Etta, the bank is going to help us solve the problem of being one in the family income."

Romance at City Hall of Alien Registration Here

And, by the way, Englishmen and Canadians seem to like us. One of these Britishers who has known how to select a beautiful home, is Frederick Thomas Booker, who is living on Capistrano avenue in Verdugo Woodlands. He was born in Warwickshire, England, and has lived in California about 18 months. He is connected with the Woodill Electric company of Los Angeles.

A countryman of his is Robert Lamb Dell, born in Oxfordshire, England, and now living at 324 Myrtle street. He is connected with Barker Brothers in Los Angeles and is taking out naturalization papers.

Still another native Britisher is Geo. William Thomas Archer Seddon, who resides at 715½ East Acacia, but who was born in Georgetown, North Yorkshire, Eng. He has been in California for two years, has applied for naturalization papers, and is in the employ of the Southern California Gas company.

George Leroy Person, who was born in Guelph, Can., has been in California about eight months, and is the proprietor of a ranch at 2150 Kenneth road. From the climate of Guelph to that of Kenneth road is some jump, but Mr. Person has made it gracefully.

Down on Pacific avenue at number 139, lives Jacob Wohlfeld, who was born in Stanislau, province of Galicia, Poland. Like his great countryman, Ignatz Paderewsky, he has sought refuge from that war-torn country in California. After achieving world renown as the king of pianists, with a self-sacrificing devotion to his country that has known few parallels even in the stormy history of that little country that has always struggled for freedom and never submitted to foreign yoke, Paderewsky devoted everything that he had and was, to the Polish cause, sharing the lot of Polish soldiers in the trenches and being finally placed at the head of their armies and their government by his devoted countrymen. Ever since the youth of America was thrilled by "Thaddeus of Warsaw," Poland has been a fruitful subject for romance and always an object of interest.

The list includes many Japanese, nearly all of whom are gardeners, as for example, Toyokichi Iwamato, who lives on North Pacific avenue and who has been a resident of California for 17 years.

Mr. Brewster comments on the general intelligence displayed by these aliens from the Flowery Kingdom and their ability to write English, their penmanship in many instances surpassing his own, he says. That is no mean commendation either, for Mr. Brewster writes well.

There are also a good many Mexicans, no small number of whom are employed by the Tropico Potteries, and engaged in other industries as common day laborers.

RENO, Nev., July 23.—Daniel Rosenberg's father-in-law was his brother-in-law.

His sister's step daughter was his wife and his wife was his sister's husband's child.

After six months wedded bliss, according to Rosenberg's testimony in his action for divorce, his wife insicted that he arbitrate the domestic affairs in her father's family.

Upon his refusal, he said, she bombarded his with bric-a-brac.

BUILDING STATISTICS OF LEADING CITIES IN COUNTRY

More Than One Hundred and Seventy Millions in New Construction in June

Building operations all over the country were more than slightly above normal in June. The totals were less for the large cities, owing to labor controversies and strikes but larger in the small cities. Thus in 197 cities heard from the aggregate valuation for June was $170,722,484 as compared with $135,108,651 in June of 1920 a gain of over 23 per cent. Reports from 188 of these cities which list included all of the larger ones, showed an approximate total of $143,000,000 for May 1921. In June 33 cities reported permits in excess of a million dollars as compared with 29 for May. For the first time in months San Francisco fell below the million mark.

An old dame at a railroad station asked a porter where she could get her ticket. The porter pointed in the direction of the ticket office. "You can get it there," he said, "through the pigeon-hole." BUILDING PERMITS NEARLY $250,000

The total for July is now $241,325, and for the year thus far, $2,197,724.722,484, as compared with $135,108,651, in June of 1920, a gain of over these cities, which list included all May, 1921. In June, 33 cities reportmark.

A beautiful young lady got out of a magnificent limousine the other night and entered the Metropolitan opera house. The young lady had recently been the heroine of a terrible scandal and as she settled herself gracefully in her box her gorgeous pearls sent a murmur of admiration through the auditorium. In the midst of this murmur Major James de Rothschild, Baron Edmond de Rothschild's heir, said in a sarcastic voice: "The woman pays—yes, but she frequently manages to get a great deal of change."

A friend who had known Thomas Riley Marshall for a great many years saw him after the cares of office had been removed from his shoulders, just as he was about to board a Washington street car. He stopped and asked him: "Tell me, Mr. Marshall, what can be done to make the office of vice-president a great office?"

"I'll tell you in one minute, and I won't even have to miss this car," said Mr. Marshall. "There isn't anything you can do. The vice-president will always be chambermaid to the king."

UNCLE SAM TAKES LIEN ON PROPERTY

(By International News Service)

DU BOIS, Pa., July 23.—If your Uncle Samuel doesn't get you coming he is certain to get you going. His tax laws are like the laws of nature—you can't escape them.

Bootleggers thought they were slipping one over on the old gentleman and "getting away with it," but they have discovered that though they sold liquor illegally the Government is going to collect its pound of flesh in the way of revenue taxes.

For months there has been a powerful lot of bootlegging in this part of the State, according to current experts. Some were caught red-handed and went so far as to plead guilty to save the expense of defending a suit in court.

In the meantime Internal Revenue Collector Llewellyn, of Pittsburgh, took notice. He sent a special examiner up here in Clearfield County. The examiner went over the Criminal Court docket in Prothonotary (County Clerk) Ralsten's office. He made a list of all those convicted of Liquor law violations. This list was sent to headquarters in Pittsburgh.

In the last few days tax liens against many of these violators have been received at the prothonotary's office and are being chalked up against the property of each violator convicted.

They are perfectly good liens, too—iron clad and guaranteed not breakable. Better still, they have right of way over all other claims against the properties, Uncle Sam will collect his little bill first—100 cents on the dollar and interest—and what is left, the other ordinary claimants, if there are any, may have.

United States an Expert Accountant

It's simple. The action is taken under Section 3186 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, which set forth that if the taxes are not paid at the proper time they become a lien against the property of the person owing such taxes. Not only the tax itself, but the interest and all costs are bunched in that lien. and the longer you dodge those taxes the bigger the bill the Government will collect in the end.

None of the illicit liquor sellers paid any tax for the liquor they peddled around, so they violated the revenuee laws, and th liens are the next step.

Bootlegger tax dodgers are all treated alike, whether they do a big business or a little business—no graduated scale for them.

The sheriff will collect the Government's bill.

Bootlegging is not all profit.

There is a species of rabbit with white body and black nose, paws, ears and tail, that is being bred because of its resemblance to ermine when made up into garments.

Silk ratine is used for suits, skirts and separate wraps.

PEOPLE OF OUR TOWN

The Kid is a Combination of pep, curiosity, devilment, goodness, fun, trouble and noise. Some days He brings his Father's gray hairs in Sorrow to the Grave, and other days He brings back Dad's lost youth. The Kid is hard to Get Along with sometimes, but still We can't get along Without him.

THE ROD OF MOSES

The Bible relates that the rod cut by Moses turned into a serpent when he cast it down. It is significant to 4000 orchardists of California that Moses cut the rod from an almond tree.

The California almond growers in the light of their treatment in the new tariff bill feel that they have hold of 7,000,000 serpents in the shape of almond trees covering 100,000 acres of the soil of this State. Having invested their time, labor, and more than $50,000,000 in the cultivation of almond orchards, they charge they are about to lose them because the new tariff bill now before the House of Representatives provides only four cents duty on unshelled almonds and eight cents on shelled nuts.

According to accurate trade figures, eighty per cent of American demand for almonds is for the shelled almond. This American market is now entirely in the hands of the speculators importing the peasant-grown and shelled Southern European almond.

To get a fair share of this American shelled almond market, the California growers are asking Congress to make the tariff bill conform to nature. They want a ratio of three to one fixed as between the duty on unshelled and shelled almonds—five cents on unshelled and fifteen cents on shelled. Even with this, they say, they will have to buck difficult competition of European shippers who landed 40,000,000 pounds of almonds in the United States, two-thirds of them being shelled at a labor cost of only ten to fifteen per cent of California high-standard-of-living wages.

Surely, California and her farmers are entitled to their reasonable demands in this case so vital to our welfare. Every loyal Californian should make it his or her business to write our Congressmen on the subject.

FAIR PLAY

California is essentially an agricultural state. It will be that for years to come and its prosperity and its future is linked irrevocably with the soil and its products.

The new tariff bill now before Congress strikes a death thrust at one of our greatest present and future crops. Unless Congress amends the bill to give at least a five-cent duty on unshelled almonds and a fifteen-cent tariff on nuts shelled, a natural ratio of three to one which prevails in the shelling of the nuts, thousands of the state's growers are going to be ruined.

There are now 100,000 acres of California soil planted to about 7,000,000 almond trees whose annual production in three or four years will approximate 70,000,000 pounds of nuts valued at $15,000,000. The aggregate investment of some 4000 growers is conservatively reckoned at $50,000,000.

The point of the whole proposition is that eighty per cent of the American demand for almonds is for the shelled nuts. This has been filled up to the present by the underfed, peasant-grown almonds of Southern Europe. But the time has come now when the California grower must have his share of the American shelled almond market to market his crop. He has arrived at a stage of production where the market for unshelled almonds is almost inconsequential, seasonal as it is.

American markets for American farmers; we must preserve them. Write your congressmen, representatives and senators, to fight to the last ditch to save the California almond orchards.

California's future almond crop will be worth $15,000,000 annually to the State if Congress grants growers' just demands for adequate tariff duties to protect American consuming market.

Romance of Air Hero Is Broken By Rich Fiancee

Funds Figure in Breaking of Engagement of Lieutenant Kloor, Who Led Flight to Hudson Bay—Barrier of Cash Intercepts Course of Love

Miss Alexandra Flowerton.

By HARRY W. NICHOLS,
International New Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, July 23. — N. G., This is the stamp which has been placed upon Lieutenant Louis A. Kloor, U. S. N., gentleman and hero, by Miss Alexandra Flowerton, wealthy Long Island society girl, in returning to him the troth plighted her, with the announcement that their engagement is broken for lack of funds.

The boy leader of last December's involuntary balloon expidition into the frozen wastes of the Northland, commenting on the breaking of the engagement, said:

"Just say it was broken by mutual agreement. We are the same friends that we always were."

Said Mrs. Alexandra J. Flowerton, the mother of the pretty young society belle:

"The engagement was broken because of the small salary which a naval officer receives. My daughter, Alexandra, has always been accustomed to a living that could not be continued on a naval lieutenant's salary. We all think Lieutenant Kloor is a brilliant young man. There is no other man or woman involved."

The romance of the young pair started several summers ago and the engagement was announced immediately following the safe return from the Canadian icefields of the three naval heroes—Kloor, Hinton and Fartell. Miss Flowerton lives in Far Rockaway, close by the Rockaway station.

FOREIGN TRADE OF JAPAN DECLINES

By DUKE N. PARRY,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

YOKOHAMA, July 23.—General opinions that the foreign trade of Japan was the most disastrous last year that it has been since the opening of the ports of Japan to foreign commerce and trade were expressed at the annual meeting of the Yokohama and Tokio Foreign Boards of Trade here recently.

The articles which have exhibited most notable slumps in 1920 were: Raw silk, peas and beans, copper, starch, matches, silk fabrics, woolen fabrics, leather manufactures, hosiery, zinc, beer, paper, hats and caps, tea and iron—all given in the comparative order of their decreases.

Japan expected a deflation of values at the end of the great war, but few merchants even thought of the year of bad business that 1920 brought to the Empire. Failure of business houses and banks were common during the year, the climax being reached in July. Among the appalling drops in values witnessed during the year were:

Raw silk, from 4600 yen to 1100 yen.

Habutae, from 35 yen to 11 yen.

Fish oil, from 30 yen to 14 yen.

Menthol, from 37 yen to 13 yen.

Camphor, from 750 yen to 200 yen.

Cotton yarn (20), from 622.50 yen to 380 yen.

John D. Rockefeller, jr., said in a Y. M. C. A. address: "The successful business man today is the one who knows how to choose his managers. A successful modern business is too vast for any one man to handle. So managers are essential, and if these managers are badly chosen, failure follows. The unsuccessful business man is apt to depute authority to such creatures as young Corn Husk. Young Corn's daddy sent him to the mill one day to try and sell the season's wheat crop. Corn got hold of the miller and submitted a handful of wheat to him. The miller examined the wheat carefully and then said: 'How much more has your father got like this?' "He ain't got no more like it,' young Corn Husk replied, 'It took him all mornin' to pick it out.'"
